

WINDSHIELD BEADING

By Allan Schanzle

An article published in the July 1998 issue of MaxFax, Allan Schanzle, Editor

I've used small thread held in place with clear-drying glue for this detail in the past, but the thread usually gives a fuzzy appearance, so I looked through my junk for something that would be better suited. I found some two-pound monofilament fishing line, but it was translucent. So I took a black-tipped permanent marker to color the fishing line and held it in place with clear-drying glue. It sure looks better.